

Charles Eisenstein

Charles Eisenstein

Special Presentation

Sunday, March 4, 2012

2:00 pm to 4:00 pm

Ice House

Mercer and Independence Streets

Berkeley Springs, WV 25411

Admission: $10 at the door

In another Transition Talks presentation, author Charles Eisenstein comes to Berkeley Springs.

Charles Eisenstein is a faculty member at Goddard College, a regular contributor to the progressive website, Reality Sandwich, and the author of Sacred Economics and The Ascent of Humanity. Although educated at Yale in mathematics and philosophy, and a former instructor at Penn State, Charles, perhaps as well as anyone else, creatively thinks about where modern humanity has come from, where we might be going, and how a new world might practically work – particularly if it was based upon love and other such fundamental principles. His book, Sacred Economics, for example, is probably the best example of a coherent, new approach to thinking about a new economic system that is popularly available.

For a brief introduction to his thought, watch *The Revolution is Love, a video that analyzes the Occupy Wall Street movement and the system's response to it.

Charles speaks internationally on issues of transition, money, health, crisis, and consciousness and truly represents one of the emerging, young voices.

This promises to be a special afternoon that will help prepare you for the unprecedented change that is on the horizon.

For more information visit www.charleseisenstein.net or call Bobbie Rohn at 304-671-6127.
